2012 Kentucky State Amateur Championship

SIMPSONVILLE – Murray State University golfer, Patrick Newcomb, successfully defended his 2011 Kentucky State Amateur Championship at Cardinal Club in Simpsonville, Kentucky with a 7-under par 206 total in 2012. Newcomb, who had Steady rounds of 68-67-71, finished four shots ahead of Ryan McCann (71-69-70) of Crestwood. Five golfers tied for third at 212, including: Bellarmine University golfer Bryan Ratterman,Davis Boland of Louisville, Matt Gann of Pineville and Eastern Kentucky University's Taylor Riggs. Newcomb started the day two shots ahead of junior golf standout, Tyler McDaniel, who lost a ball and took a triple bogey on the first hole and was unable to right the ship over the remaining 17 holes and also finished third.

"This felt different this year because I had been through this before. At the start I was thinking I was going to cruise. I was 9-under through 7. Then played #9 great, but had A three putt. It was a grind after that to keep it at even par for the day. I kept plodding along and hit a great shot from 250 yards out and made birdie on 13 and got it going from there," said Newcomb, who won his first Kentucky State Am at Kearney Hills Golf Links in Lexington. "This may take a little bit to sink in. I was thinking about that right after we finished. It was really exciting but I'm really beat up. The Cardinal Club really puts the pressure on you and you have to make good shots to score there," he said.

The Cardinal Club played to a par of 71 and 7,000 yards for the week.
